MCK Receives $50,000 Installment for Language Project

For immediate release

(Kahnawá:ke – 5, Onerahtókha/April 2006) The Mohawk Council of Kahnawá:ke announced that it has received $50,000 US from Microgaming, Inc. The monies are to be allocated to the development of the Rosetta Stone language project. This is the third such installment, part of a five-year $250,000 commitment made to Kahnawá:ke by the world's largest on-line gaming software developer.

“This is a direct benefit of the creation of Mohawk Internet Technologies,” said Grand Chief Michael Ahríhron Delisle, Jr. “Microgaming, who works hand in hand with MIT, came forward in 2003, asking how they could be of assistance to the community. This is the result.”

“We're very proud of the part we are playing in the re-establishment of the Mohawk language in Kahnawá:ke,” John Moshal, President of Microgaming, Inc., said earlier.

The Rosetta Stone language learning software will be administered by the Kanienkehaka Onkwawenna Raotitiohkwa (KOR) Cultural Center. The KOR is expected to make an announcement of the status of the software in the near future.
